The optimon was expressed by Dr. Patterson and endersed by his associates that the city made a great mistake in not lending the society the $40,000 and putting itself in position, as it should, to finally become the owner of this valuable property. He suggested as one valuable use to which the building could be put that it be converted into bathing-pools, where all of the boys and girls of Richmond might learn to swim and enjoy and refresh themselves in hot weather.

After the testimony of Mr. Warren, the substance of which has been published, the prisoner was examined, and said that he had paid Warren all he owed him and obtained the receipt lawfully. Justice Crutchfield said that the young man had made such a straightforward statement of the transaction he was inclined to believe that what he said was true. It certainly had raised a doubt in his mind, and he would therefore dismiss the case.

About a month ago he came to this city in order to secure proper medical treatment, and was first attended by Drs. McCaw and Brock, but later, as his condition became more alarming, it was deemed advisable to call in the assistance of Dr. Hunter McGuire. All possible medical skill was rendered, and loving, affectionate relatives and friends ministered constantly to his last moments.

Major Doswell married Miss Fannie A. Sutton, a daughter of the late James T. Sutton, and sister of Major P. T. Sutton and Mr. William M. Sutton, of this city. By this uniou there were five children; one son, Mr. T. Bernard Doswell, and four daughters, Misses Sallie J., Ella, and Norma Doswell, and Mrs. Allen Tyler, of Richmond.

HIS HOSPITABLE HOME.

Major Doswell was blessed with a large circle of loving friends and relatives, and no man was possessed of a more genial nature or higher sense of refinement, purity, and honor. Those with whom he was brought in contact were drawn towards him by the strongest ties of affection and regard, and his bounteous hospitality was never found lacking towards those who entered his house. Returning every year to his old home, his popularity and hospitality has drawn to his house from every section of the country large numbers of friends, and there, on what he called his "field-days," they enjoyed his bounteous and genial welcome.

"What are the prospects of the city's water-supply for the summer?" asked the reporter. "Do you think the works can supply us in case of a continued drought?"

"I see nothing to prevent it," said Mr. Bolling. "There is, of course, a searcity of water at some points in the city of Richmond at high elevations owing to the fact that an immense waste is continually going on in the premises connected with the pipes. Persons at these more elevated portions of the city are necessarily greatly inconvenienced, as it is difficult for them to obtain water except at night, when the consumption is by no means so great. People should take into consideration how essential it is to prevent this waste, as often it hinders their neighbors from getting water, and is not advantageous to the health of the city at large." SCARCITY AT HIGH ELEVATIONS.

Speaking of the comparative quantity of water in the reservoirs at this time, Mr. Bolling said: "They are up to the high-water mark; in fact, as full as they have been at any time in the past. The New reservoir contains 40,000,000 gallons and the Old reservo; 2,000,000. It is true the reservoir like now presents a somewhat dried-up appearance, but as the water in this is supplied almost entirely by springs, the people need feel no alarm on account of the supplies to come from our water-works. I am thinking of adding to the supply now in the lake, as I could easily do so without diminishing the city's by pumping from the reservoir."

"At this time," continued Mr. Bolling,
"the daily consumption of water in this city is 12,000,000 gallons, or about 150 gallons per capita. Our maximum daily capacity is estimated at about 20,000,000 pallons, while the least flow of the river is 1,000 cubic feet per second. Of this we only use about 600 cubic feet, so you can easily see that we need feel no uneasipress."

"At present," continued Mr. Bolling, "I am adding some repairs to the coping at Bosher's dam in place of that which was swept away in the floods of last summer, this being the first time that the river has been sufficiently low for us to repair these been sufficiently low for us to repair these damages.

"The pumps are now being worked to their fullest capacity, with the exception of the steam-pumps, which we run once in every three days. The present depth of the water in the reservoir is twenty feet above the basin bottom, and it has never been below that, to my knowledge, in the last four years."

In reference to the shallow condition of James river at present Mr. Belling said: "From my general observation of the river there is considerably more water flowing from Bosher's dam than there was in 1878, the time of the continued drought, or in 1881, when there was another memorable dry spell."

"Is there any liability of an accident at any time while the river is low by which the water-supply might be reduced below the amount of consumption?" asked the reporter.

A Family Burned to Death.
(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)
QUEBEC, July 17.—At 2 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the bar-room owned by Delamare & Oullett, on St. Joseph street. The flames made such rapid progress that soon the whole building was ablaze. The fire brigade quickly answered the alarm, which, however, was a little late in being turned in. On arriving at the scene of conflagration the firemen worked with energy in preserving the surrounding buildings, not aware that occupants of the upper part of the burning house were roasting, and it was only after the flames had been extinguished that they came upon a family of five persons who had been burned to death. The family consisted of Pierre Miranda, his wife, and three children, recently returned from the United States, intending to settle in this their native city. It is thought that others perished in the flames, as the Mirandas had several lodgers from the country.

Another Minnesota Storm.

St. PAUL, Minn., July 17.—Another heavy storm visited parts of this State late vesterday evening. At Red Wing and Lake City a heavy beating rain is thought to have done some damage to the crops, but other property is all right. Marine, a little town near Stillwater, as well as Stillwater, is reported wiped out, but the latest advices are against that report.

Anackona suffers some losses from levelled fences and overturned trees, but the worst of the storm there passed north of that city, from which section nothing has yet been heard. Clear Lake, Wis., according to one report, was a severe sufferer: there, on what he called his "field-days," they enjoyed his bounteous and genial welcome.

Major Doswell was a member of the Tuckahoe Farmers' Club and always manifested a deep nherest in its meetings. Whereas we have heard with deep regret of the death of our triend. Henry Bodeker, whose genial and courteous bearing, as exemplified in all of his business and social intercourse with us through a period of many years, has secured our esteem and affectionate regard; and whereas we have always found in him a man of high integrity of character, nice sense of honor, and kind, charitable, and unselfish disposition, we cannot but deplore the sad event which deprives us of his companionship forever in this world, and lament the loss which as citizens we have sustained by this closing of bis useful and valuable public career.
